“ Dear Papa Gene, I just wanted to say thank you, thank you for all the fun times we have shared and the unforgettable moments we experienced together. I am forever grateful for the times we came to your place and you came to ours, when you walked in the door arms wide open where we came running in for hugs and you always had a bag full of candy for us. The moments where you were able to watch me cheer and saw me sing and dance in my living room. The times you came to my birthday dinners and parties at my house where we sat together and talked about what we were up to lately. I am so very thankful for all the memories we share and will never forget how you made me smile. I love you so much and will miss you lots. ❤️🥺😘🤔👍

“ I met Gene only a few years ago through his friend Bubbie (Kirk) Gonzales
I had heard about him for years from Bubbie and his declining health but when I actually met him you really would have never known he was so sick
He was a hoot with a loving personality
You could tell he loved to laugh and tell stories
I'll remember him that way
Happy and a joy to be around
Rest in peace Gene 🙏

“ I used to visit Uncle Henry and Aunt Beverly (my godparents) when I was little. Gene and I got on like a house on fire. We got into so much mischief. He taught me to cuss when I was 9! And the time we played king of the hill on a muddy mound of dirt and got caked head to toe—so much laughter! So many shenanigans! He was mischief personified. I loved our time together. I wish we had kept in touch. I’m so sorry to have missed the chance to reminisce. God speed, Genie.

“ The first time I met Mr. Gene, I was hooked. Mesmerized. I’d never met anyone quite like him and I’m not sure I ever will again. Gene was a doer. Always had a new project, always tinkering with something. Making something for someone else, undoubtedly. He was very selfless in that way. I actually watched the man make a frackle burning kit out of a microwave motor. Who thinks of something like that? Mr. Gene did. I didn’t know him very long and was only able to visit with him a handful of times. But those times made a lasting impression on me and I’m happy to have known him. My condolences to his friends and love ones. May God protect and keep him.
