“ I still miss you so much. Something broke inside me when you died and I can't fix it. I continue on to raise our son. I tell him all the time how wonderful you were a great, caring, loving person. We miss you terribly, and will always love you. You would be so proud to see what our son has become

“ You've missed Easter and Mother's Day so far. It's just now kicking in that you're gone. I hate it here it seems so empty without you. I feel like nothing works everything is broken even if it's perfectly fine. Everything in this house is broken. You didn't deserve to die. God took away the one thing I loved most. No body in this house was more broken than I was. I was shattered my heart broke into billions little pieces. It makes me mad knowing that you were so young and your life was savagely taken from you it makes me mad that you left me here. But it's makes me happier to know that you're safe and happy now living with god. I miss you with every ounce in my body. Thank you for painting the skies. Love you. -Love RaeRae

“ This is such a great loss. I didn't have the privilege of knowing Jessie for a long time, but the very short amount of time that I did, for that I am thankful. But, I can't say that without saying how unfair it is and how cheated I feel to have lost a friend like her. She had so much life yet to live and she had lives yet to enrich by being here. I know as far as myself and mine, we miss her terribly and we always will. And, we'll forever miss the life we didn't get to have with her.

I have to say that Jessie deserved more than a faceless page on a funeral home website that doesn't have anything written about her...not even a simple obituary. She was a very special person and her life mattered. I am thankful to this funeral home for at least acknowledging her when nothing else was done.

Jessie...we love you and miss you and you'll forever be in our hearts.
