“ His life was unique and challenged from the beginning. But he was always a good kid.

He was so smart even before school. A awesome conversationalist and never looked down upon anyone who was less fortunate whether in education or lifestyle.

He loved his family with his whole being and was a twin to his dadL, ole dog, Kevin Lee and even when things wasn't so good with their relationship still he honored his father as a good man and no matter what Kevin Lee loved that boy and would give his life for him.

I came into his life before he even went to school, I got to teach him so many first....

Tie his shoes, ride his bike, learned to write his name and the very first day of school

Not everyone approved of Robbie being raised by me bc of course I was always the bad girl. And it was difficult in the begging bc he had so many fears of being left by the adult in his life. But I loved him always. And still to this day we had a relationship and he called and checked on me always.

He loved his brothers, CODY STEVEN GRAVES AND SEBASTIAN MAURICE LEE MANASCO. And was a good brother to them.

My funniest memory is when he came to my motel on O'Neil Lane on a Walmart scooter buggie thing. He parked in a spot like it was his ride....lol and when the ppl told him he had to leave (and you know I had to go right along with him bc I be damnl, right or dead wrong I was coming behind him just as hard as if I had carried him inside my own body.) And there he went smiling and singing Jesus songs as he rode away on that scooter, hollering he loved me and FAMILY FOREVER.

I can't believe that I'll never hear him whistle again or he won't teach me something from the Bible anymore. He loved Jesus so much he got so intense and excited when he would tell you something from the Bible.

I really don't care what anyone might think or assume about me and the years that it was only he and I while Kevin was on the road working and before he went to live with his grandparents. Only he and I know how much love we had for each other.

His heart was huge and his spirit even bigger. He never met a stranger and never let the negative get to him.

My only regret is he didn't have any children to carry on his legacy. I know he is in heaven with Kevin Lee and they are probably fussing at each other like crazy and fishing on some beautiful heavenly lake or out there in the gardens petting them big ole bucks that they both loved to track, hunt and explore and learn all about their habitat. Forever I will have a empty place inside of me. Losing him is truly like losing my first born child. I will always have a ache that will never go away. But I know he is at peace finally and hanging out with all his family that was waiting up there for him. I know Vicki was the first one at the gate and his best friend Mark too. I am honored to have another guardian angel to protect and watch over me in this hard world down here. And it makes me a little more unafraid of leaving this earth bc I know he will be there to take me on a awesome tour of HEAVEN when I get there.

I LOVE YOU ROBBIE. Forever you are my SON and me and your brothers are finally together as one as a family. And they love and miss their BIG BROTHER already so much. Watch over them son, they both need a protective angel over them Keep them safe when I can not and you FLY HIGH And go find HERBIE up there in those clouds. Give him our love ok and you tell him I said HEY NOW HEY NOW OLE BOY!!!

I'll see you again soon my biggest boi. I will always be proud to call you Son.

I love you and will miss you more with every passing day.
